THE WIMBISH HOUSE

For timeless elegance in the heart of Atlanta's Midtown, welcome your special guests to The Historic Wimbish House.

In times past, hosting an event large or small was an occasion for celebration. A warm and engaging welcome was the hallmark of elegant entertaining, and refinement was reflected in each detail. Whether attending an elaborate soiree or an intimate gathering, guests knew to expect polished surroundings, sparkling conversation, and gracious hospitality...

Host an unforgettable celebration in Atlanta's most celebrated location.

Built in 1906 as a private residence, this "Grand Old Lady of Peachtree" is one of the few remaining homes along what was once known as Atlanta's fashionable "Mansion Row," and it now nestles proudly among Midtown's dramatic corporate skyscrapers, upscale hotels and restaurants, and famed art, music and theatre venues. Located at Peachtree and 14th streets, The Wimbish House is an event destination that is as convenient as it is beautiful.

With its covered veranda, wide staircases, large, high-ceilinged gathering rooms, tall archways and columns, stately ballroom, and formal dining and reception rooms, The Wimbish House provides a magical backdrop for the most momentous of occasions.

History, and memories, in the making.

Commissioned by prominent Atlanta attorney William A. Wimbish as a residence befitting his family's social status, The Wimbish House was designed in 1898 by W. T. Downing, Atlanta's most noted architect. Known for homes that were innovative and sophisticated, Downing was the preferred architect for Atlanta's stylish elite, and he later designed many of Atlanta's most prestigious public buildings, including The Church of the Sacred Heart of Jesus, Trinity, United Methodist Church, First Presbyterian Church, and Lupton Hall at Oglethorpe University.

Designed in the eclectic French Renaissance Revival, or Chateuesque, style, this lovely Victorian-era home is distinguished by steep gables, intricate detailing, and massive stone masonry ornamentation. Located at 1150 Peachtree Street and now a beloved Midtown icon, The Wimbish House is beautifully restored and has been designated a national, state and city landmark.

The Wimbish House is owned by The Atlanta Woman's Club, and funds from its operation are used to support the Club's charitable activities.
